Hello! I hope you are doing well. I am a 64 year-old man who is looking for a quality friend. I was raised in Minnesota and North Dakota. I pursued psychology and theology, completing two Masters degrees, before practicing 25 years as a licensed psychotherapist who worked with individuals, families and groups. I also taught college psychology and religion classes. I love playing and listening to music. I was involved in my church music team, singing and playing the guitar and drums. I love culture, literature, movies, travel (not so much now!) and meaningful conversations. Unfortunately, in 2009 I experienced an unexpectedly severe, adverse reaction to a medication that caused an involuntary intoxication, resulting in my committing a completely uncharacteristic offense. A nationally known expert in neuropharmacology wanted to work for my defense, but was not judicially appointed. I am seeking gubernatorial conditional pardon or clemency. I'm also hoping to have five books I have written published. I write short stories, autobiographical sketches and reflections on the American criminal justice and prison systems. Soon I will have a blog launched that will also deal with these issues. I use humor, satire, personal stories, journalism and criminal analysis in my writings.

It would be wonderful to hear from an intelligent, warm, friendly, fun loving woman. I am interested in finding out about you and who you are. I also maintain a blog. I look forward to hearing from you. Take care.
